U.S. Senate Votes For Jewish State, Free Palestine Entry

Rebuffing President Truman, the Senate overwhelmingly adopted on December 17 a resolution urging the United States to use its good offices toward the establishment of a Jewish commonwealth in Palestine and for the free entry of Jews there.

The President's opposition to the measure had been expressed by Senator Tom Connally of Texas in the climax of a heated debate.

A series of parliamentary maneuvers had buffeted the resolution for several hours, but at 5:30 p.m. the measure was taken up again. At 6:40 p.m., after the resolution had received its most supporting arguments from the Republican side of the floor, the vote came in a landslide of 77-13, which was followed apparently by the single, drawn-out testimony of "competent witnesses," Arabs as well as Jews, he asked.

"Is Congress going to overthrow the President in this matter and deal with it itself?"

Senator James M. Mead of New York responded that adoption of the resolution now was justified by what he termed Britain's violation of her mandate and of the Balfour Declaration, which provided for a Jewish national home in Palestine.

The debate was begun by Senator Robert F. Wagner of New York, who asserted bluntly that he did not want the British-American committee to substitute its judgment—the judgment of a few—for the intent and determination of the American Congress and people. He said he could see no hope for world peace if the world could not deal honestly with comparatively small matters like this resolution.

"If the great English-speaking world," he said, "is going to be divided into two camps, one for the Jews and one for the Arabs, it is better that the Jews should be on our side than on the other side."

President Truman's sympathy with the plight of the Jews and his efforts thus far to get an increased immigration quota in Palestine are well known, Senator Connally declared. He added that the resolution was certainly not opposed by the Jews or by the Arabs, but by the lack of leadership on the part of the President.

Senator Connally declared that he did not want this resolution passed. Senator Connally declared in a ringing voice, "It is not my job to go to the committee (Senate Foreign Relations Committee) himself. He called me over the telephone himself and he told me to tell the committee, and I reported that to the committee. He told me, 'I don't regard it as advisable. I don't want to see any sort of resolution enacted until this commission has completed its inquiry and reported back.'"

"The Secretary of State also is opposed to the resolution. He doesn't want it at this time."

"I believe this resolution is not calculated to help the Jews but to hurt their cause. It is not in the interest of the Jews to pass the resolution at this time."

After Senator Connally had further explained that the British-American committee was to investigate the plight of Jews who had been victims of the Nazis, would estimate how many wished to emigrate to Palestine and hear the testimony of "competent witnesses," Arabs as well as Jews, he asked:

"Is Congress going to overthrow the President in this matter and deal with it itself?"

Find Camp Packed And Filthy

High-ranking United States Army officials, investigating the displaced persons camp at Landsberg, Germany, found 6,000 homeless Jews jammed into a space designed for 4,200, with many living in filthy conditions. They placed much of the blame on the Jews themselves as well as on the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration officials operating the camp.

The inspection group was headed by Lieut. Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, United States Chief of Staff in the European theatre; Lieut. Gen. Lucien K. Truscott, United States Third Army commander; Maj. Gen. Albert W. Kenner, surgeon general for the European theatre; and Judge Simon H. Rifkind, of New York, United States Army adviser on Jewish affairs.

Accompanied by a score of news correspondents, they came by special train from Frankfurt-on-Main through a snowstorm to investigate charges by Dr. Leo Srois, sociologist of Hobart College, in Geneva, N.Y., and camp welfare officer, that the inmates were underfed, ill-clothed, overcrowded in unfit quarters and menaced by the threat of a "disastrous epidemic."

After a day-long inspection, the Army officials asserted there was no imminent danger of an epidemic.

Unsanitary conditions in many of the barracks were appalling. Human defecation littered the floor of some of the rooms. When General Smith saw this, he turned to the UNRRA camp director, A. A. Glasgold, of 222 West Twenty-third Street, New York, and said: "I would be ashamed."

Later he told a committee of camp inmates that "you folks are not doing your part in keeping the camp clean."

General Smith estimated that 90 per cent of the Jews repatriated to Poland were returning with many bringing their relatives.

General Kenner said the food at the camp was adequate, though monotonous and too starchy. He said that he had found no evidence of malnutrition. He also said that he had found that the Jews were warmly clad, though short of undergarments. All quarters, he added, are sufficiently heated by stoves.

General Smith told the inmates' committee that the Army would seek additional housing, the lack of which he attributed partly to the UNRRA officials for their failure to make proper regulation in writing.

Reports that many real deficiencies were caused by the inmates' trafficking in the black market with their supplies were discounted by both Army and UNRRA officials, although they admitted some black marketing had been going on.

Dr. Leo Srois, who had announced his resignation in making public his charges, said that he had reconsidered and would remain on the job.

Warn Jews Not To Attack Britain

Viscount Samuel, first High Commissioner of Palestine, during a debate in the House of Lords, called for "a fresh start with fresh minds and fresh authority" to break the Arab-Jewish deadlock on Palestine.

The debate was marked by protests against criticism of Britain for her handling of the Palestine problem. The Archbishop of York called on leaders of Jewish opinion to refrain from persistent attacks against Britain. He warned that the "violent, sometimes almost hysterical, anti-British propaganda" might lead to anti-Semitism.

The solution, Lord Samuel contended, is not to be found in any renewed attempt at a geographical partition between Jews and Arabs. "The clue to a settlement," he said, "is to abandon the idea that the system of democracy we have in Europe should be applied to Palestine."

The country must remain for some years under a trusteeship, he declared, because "complete independence must mean anarchy."

Palestine should not have a constitution that would put either the Jews or the Arabs, as a minority, under the supremacy of the other, Lord Samuel said. There should, he declared, be a central council under, as at present, a British president and containing representatives of the respective communities.

Trans-Jordan, he said, should be actively developed with the assistance of a considerable loan guaranteed by the British Treasury, half for the Arabs and half for Jewish settlers.

"Jewish immigration into Palestine should be reopened on a large scale," Lord Samuel concluded.

Charges Polish People Wish To Eradicate Jews

A gloomy picture of conditions generally among Jewish survivors in Europe — especially in Poland, where Jews were said still to be the victims of anti-Semitism — was given by welfare leaders recently returned from inspecting the liberated areas.

They spoke at the thirty-first annual meeting of the Joint Distribution Committee at the Commodore Hotel, in New York, which adopted a budget of $58,960,000 to carry its relief program into nearly fifty countries throughout the world during 1946. The budget was approved by the JDC's National Committee and by 2,500 members.

Dr. Joseph Schwartz, chairman of the European Council of the J.D.C., who returned after being the first representative of any volunteer relief agency to enter Poland since V-E Day, bitterly denounced the situation in Poland as he warned that the "test for survival of nearly 1,600,000 Jews still alive in continental Europe will come in 1946, a crucial year in Jewish history."

Asserting that he was aware of the seriousness of his charges, Dr. Schwartz bluntly accused the Polish people of being disappointed that the Germans did not settle the "Jewish problem" for them. He said that during his five-week stay in Poland he discovered that Jews "are going under assumed Aryan names because that is the only way they can get and keep a job."

In almost every Polish city and town, even those that escaped devastation at the hands of the Germans, the Jewish quarter was the only part burned and Cracow was the only Polish city where a pre-war Jewish synagogue remained, Dr. Schwartz said, adding that there was a wave of terrorism now going on to drive the Jews out of Poland completely.

"Jews are receiving threatening letters warning them to get out," he declared. "There is also banditry, not necessarily anti-Semitic, but every once in a while a Jew is murdered and nobody seems to know the reason why. But every time it happens, hundreds more Jews start walking."

This mass migration, which he said usually wound up in an American camp where it complicated conditions still more, was thinning the ranks of Poland's remaining 80,000 Jews, all that were left of a pre-war population of 3,500,000.

He pointed out, however, that the Polish Government itself was not anti-Semitic and was doing all it could to help the Jewish people, but since such action was not popular among the Poles in general, the Government was afraid to take a strong stand.

Dr. Schwartz explained that Jews were encouraged to settle in East Prussia and lower Silesia, away from the more populous centres.

Bad as the conditions are in Poland, Dr. Schwartz told the meeting, "the situation in Hungary is even worse, because there is less (Continued on Page Ten)

U.S. Quota For Jewish Relief Is $100,000,000

Whether the United States can meet the opportunity for a real peace depends largely on how much can be done for the victims of war and aggression, Earl G. Harrison, American member of the Inter-Governmental committee, declared at Atlantic City, at the national conference of the United Jewish Appeal at which Jewish leaders from 548 communities were present. The delegates voted unanimously to undertake a campaign to raise $100,000,000 in 1946 for the United Jewish appeal for refugees, overseas needs and Palestine. The quota was decided on the basis of the following needs of the United Jewish Appeal agencies for the coming year: about $34,000,000 for the Joint Distribution Committee's program of relief and rehabilitation; $48,000,000 for the spending, settlement and development program

See U.S. Able To Win Palestine Plan

President Truman's action in naming representatives of the United States to the international commission that is to inquire into conditions in Palestine has made more necessary than ever Congressional action to restore immigration into that country and to establish it as a Jewish commonwealth, Senator Robert A. Taft, of Ohio, said in an address at the Hotel Astor, in New York.

Senator Taft spoke at a dinner of the Zionist Organization of America, attended by 2,000 persons who paid $100 a plate, as part of the organization's 1945 campaign to raise $600,000 in this area for its activities. Other speakers were State Attorney General Nathaniel L. Goldstein, who presided; Dr. Guy Emery Shipley, editor of The Churchman; Dr. Emanuel Neumann, acting president of the Zionist Organization of America, and Rabbi Stephen S. Wise.

Congressional action is needed, Mr. Taft asserted, in order that the investigating commission and the nations of the world may understand fully the position of the United States with regard to Zionist aims in Palestine. He referred specifically to a Senate resolution, sponsored by him and by Senator Robert F. Wagner and pledging United States support of increased immigration and the establishment of a Jewish homeland.

Before this resolution was introduced, President Truman was consulted and expressed no objection, Mr. Taft declared, adding that he is puzzled by the attitude current in some parts of official Washington that action on the resolution should be delayed while the investigators carry out their work.

"We were assured that there would be no opposition to the resolution, although the Administration might agree with the British on a commission to investigate," Senator Taft said.

If the American position is taken to avoid difficulties with the Arab populations of the Middle East, it would seem reasonable to suppose that it would postpone consideration of Jewish claims to Palestine for an indefinite period, he continued, as the Arabs presumably will remain opposed to immigration for a long time.

The same argument may be made against objections raised on the basis that it is now necessary to obtain Arabian oil or that the United States should bow to objections raised by the British Government, he added. Oil may be ex-

MINING NEWS

Salmits Acquires Sensational "Mitto" Northwest-Territories Properties

News of spectacular gold strikes has become something to be expected from the fabulously rich Northwest Territories. Reports have just leaked out, however, of phenomenal discoveries in the Couragous Lake area which appear to bear every promise of even "out-gianting" the famous Giant Yellowknife itself.

It all began last summer, when "Mike" Mitto, the well-known and colorful prospector with years of experience in Canadian and Alaska goldfields, and Richard E. Parkes, M.E., consulting engineer for B.E.A.R., were fighting mosquitoes in a prospecting trip which was destined to culminate in one of the most amazing gold "finds" in the history of Canadian gold mining.

Due to the fact that anyone acquiring claims must file notice thereof, and indicate the location of such properties, the new Mitto gold find has become the sensation of the mining world. By plane and every available conveyance, engineers and prospectors, backed by influential mining interests have been rushed to the scene, and today practically every available piece of ground surrounding the Mitto discovery has been staked in short order.

The original Mitto claims have been acquired by Salmits Northwest Mines Limited, the management of which is vested in experienced mining executives with many successful ventures to their credit. Large-scale exploratory operations have been carried out, and trenching on the property has yielded consistently high values.

Of the Salmits property, the eminent Dr. A. F. Banfield, Ph.D., has this to say: "I consider the Salmits property an extremely promising mining venture, and one of exceptional merit." In his report to the company, he states that one vein has been opened up for a length of 70 feet, which averages $31.54 gold over 38.3 inches.

Both ends of the vein are open, with excellent values at each end, and the vein locks very strong in both places. Much fine free gold is visible. The vein lies in a strong shear zone which has been mapped for a distance of four miles, having a known length of twenty-two miles, and along which gold has been found in numerous places. This auriferous shear traverses the Salmits property for a distance of 14,000 feet, and the entire length will be investigated.

Of 29 samples submitted for assay by Dr. Banfield, not one drew a blank. Gold values were consistently rich, in addition to valuable silver content. Further samples which have been taken from the Salmits property returned values of several ounces gold per ton, averaging as high as $1270.50 per ton.

Also reporting on the Salmits property, Richard E. Parkes, M.E., expressed himself as being most enthusiastic about the possibilities uncovered. He gives it as his opinion that the outstanding discoveries made in the main shear zone "can be developed into commercial ore-bodies." Concluding his report, Mr. Parkes states, "I am confident that the results will be such that the next step in development will be the sinking of a shaft and the bringing of this property into production."

A similar optimistic report was submitted by W. B. Airth, B.Sc., who also assayed better than average values when he examined the Salmits holdings.

It is the intention of the management of Salmits to embark upon an aggressive development campaign which includes an extensive program of diamond drilling designed to prove the property to

Says Informed Persons Least Biased

Racial and religious prejudice
can best be fought and overcome
through facts rather than emotional appeals, Elmo Roper, public opinion analyst, said at the annual meeting of the board of directors
of the National Conference of Christians and Jews. Effective dissemination of these facts calls for improved schools, newspapers and radio broadcasts, he said.

"Information makes for more openness," Mr. Roper asserted. "Information makes for a different kind of opinion. Much—not all,
but much—of what seems to be a desire to persecute is often no more than a desire to defend. The desire to defend is born of fear. We fear what we do not understand. We fear what seems to threaten our own security, our own opportunity to get ahead in the world, our own ideals."

From public opinion surveys he has conducted, Mr. Roper said, he has found that better-informed persons were less liable to have strong prejudices resulting from misconceptions.

As an example, Mr. Roper said:
"We found that opinions on Jews vary with the information one has about Jews. One who believes that all matters of high finance in

DOGGEREL AIMED AT SWEDISH JEWS

The London Jewish Chronicle
reports that Aberg's, a firm of publishers in Stockholm, are supplying school children and students with the most disgusting type of propaganda, aimed against the Jews, and apparently without interference by the authorities.

Two crude and vulgar anti-Semitic poems were sent anonymously to all the Ministers of the Swedish Church.

One of these pieces of doggerel does not bear the name of either printer or publisher. The other was printed by A. B.
Broderberg and Sons, of Stockholm, a printing house often employed by the Nazis, during the war.

The first "poem" is in the form of a prayer, asking God
whether the struggle of the Germanic Heroes had been in vain and whether it was God's intention to cast their culture in the dust. It speaks of the Huns, but forgets to mention the followers of Hitler.

The other "poem" urges the clergy to wage war against the Jews.

The terminology is easily recognizable. The author calls himself a Lutheran, and allows it to be inferred that he is a Minister of the Swedish State Church who wants to mobilize the Swedish Ministry against the Jews, of whom, in his view,
not enough have been exterminated, comments the Swedish periodical Trots Allt.

The paper regards it as a complete scandal that such race hatred can find expression in a democratic State, and finally asks the Minister of Justice
whether it is not illegal in Sweden to issue pamphlets without the name of the publisher.

America are dictated by Jews is apt to express different opinions on the desirability of Jews as neighbors and citizens than are those who know that Jews do not have a stranglehold on the finances of this country."

The opportunity to attend school must be extended to an ever-increasing number of people he said, and more and better newspapers, magazines, radio broadcasts, moving pictures and forum
must be encouraged and supported.

People must have informed opinions about the less dramatic things that influence their daily lives, Mr. Roper went on and gave the tariff and taxation system as examples.

"We can strive to calmly and
with obvious fairness supply more

Congregation Is 120 Years Old

Congregation Bnai Jeshurun, at 257 West Eighty-eighth Street,
the second oldest Jewish congregation in New York and the oldest conservative congregation in the U.S., is celebrating its 120th anniversary. Dr. Israel Goldstein has been rabbi since 1918.

This congregation was established in 1826 by a group of Ash-kenazic Jews, coming principally from England and Holland. New York's first Jewish congregation, Shearith Israel, had been organized about 1690 by Sephardic Jews from Spain, and it still retains the name of the Spanish and Portuguese Synagogue, now at Central Park West and Seventieth Street.

Congregation Bnai Jeshurun's
first synagogue was a colonial-style building at 115 Elm Street.
Since then it has occupied five locations, as the congregation followed the uptown trend. Its present synagogue, of Byzantine architecture, was erected in 1918 and its decorative designs and symbols were copied from remains of buildings in Palestine and Egypt.
A community centre for the congregation, at 270 West Eighty-ninth Street, was added in 1928.

Dr. Goldstein had just been graduated from the Jewish Theological Seminary when he was called as rabbi of the congregation in 1918. During his rabbinate, the congregation has grown from 250 families to more than 1,000.
Its membership has contributed $10,000,000 for American philanthropies, Jewish and non-Jewish;
$3,000,000 for European relief, and more than $2,000,000 for the upbuilding of Palestine. Dr. Goldstein has just retired as president of the Zionist Organization of America.

information about the size and nature of all minorities," he said.
"Where there are misconceptions about Catholics, Jews, Negroes and Southern Baptists, we can offer facts. And the facts are that no minority is dangerous because of its religion or race."

Dr. Everett R. Clinchy, president
of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, was chairman of the meeting. It was held at the Waldorf-Astoria.

The Rev. George B. Ford pastor of Corpus Christi Roman Catholic Church, 529 West 121st Street,
reported that the New York Roman Catholic Archdiocese has introduced experimentally in seventy of the Archdiocese's elementary schools a syllabus on intergroup relations. Discussions emphasize that no true Christian can hold group prejudices.

Paying tribute to Mrs. Douglas as "a great and able champion of the underprivileged, a believer in right and justice for all," Mrs. Sol Donoparth, president of the chapter, told 100 members and guests that the award had been made to Mrs. Douglas "not because of her great talent as an actress or as a concert singer, but because she is a great humanitarian."

Mrs. Douglas, who said she visited Palestine in 1932, and had been "much impressed by the wonderful work done by the Jews
there," declared:

"I am not worried about the Jewish people; I am worried about those who are not concerned about the Jews. The Jews have had the courage to keep on, in spite of great suffering and persecution."

"With the arrival of the atomic era, at long last people are faced with the necessity of learning to live together. We must return to basic human ideas, the fundamental principles of Jewish thinking, if we are to solve the problems of human beings in this world. One of the places we can begin right

Jennie Moscovitz, who made her stage debut sixty-three years ago
with Sarah Bernhardt, and Max
Moscovitz, who managed the old Eldorado, first Jewish vaudeville theatre in New York, celebrated their fifty-seventh wedding anniversary with a family dinner at their home, 564 West 169th Street.

Mrs. Moscovitz is known as "Mamma" in the theatre world because of her many famous mother roles. She played the role of a Jewish mother in various plays for over thirty years, including
"The Auctioneer," the "Potash and Perlmutter" series and Paul Mu-ni's "Counsellor-at-Law".

"That was perfect for me," Mrs.
Moscovitz said, describing her last part. "I did not use any tricks—I was just natural."

Mrs. Moscovitz was born in Jassy, Rumania, where she studied acting with Gallinow, Sarah Bern-hardt's teacher. It was in Jassy that she played with Bernhardt.

At seventeen, she came to the United States after receiving an offer from the Jewish Art Theatre
in New York. There she met Mr.
Moscovitz, then a theatrical clerk,
and later they were married.

now is in Palestine, by opening it and letting the Jews in."

Mrs. Moscovitz, national president of Hadassah, and Mrs.
Samuel Hartley, membership chairman of the New York Chapter, also spoke.

"They Bite In Winter, Too!"

When Canadians drop an expectant line through the ice, they are practicing an art which the Indians learned from the Eskimo... and they are also enjoying a prolific Canadian asset... the abundance of fish which has been the keystone of our $149,000,000 tourist industry.

Yet this great asset can be endangered by over-fishing, by pollution of the streams through forest fires, and most of all by non-observance of conservation laws.

As a Canadian citizen, a share in this great store of natural wealth belongs to you... and it is both your privilege and your responsibility to help protect this rich heritage. Carling's believe you can best help by knowing what should or can be done.

Therefore, Carling's have formed The Carling Conservation Club so that current, authentic conservation news
may be made widely available. *Join this club today simply by writing to Dept. (B13), The Carling Breweries

continue to receive factual information on the subject of conservation as it becomes available without cost to you.

I'M GLAD WE WAITED FOR A
"Wear-Ever"
PERCOLATOR

COFFEE-LOVERS appreciate their favorite beverage all the more, when it is prepared in a "Wear-Ever" percolator. This popular utensil brings out the full natural flavour and aroma, as you like it best. Made from thick, hard ALCAN sheet aluminum, the "Wear-Ever" percolator is strikingly attractive in the modern style and extra long handle. For economy and extra long service, always choose "Wear-Ever". It's well worth waiting for.

ALL FOODS ARE COOKED BETTER IN "Wear-Ever"

Aluminum protects the natural color, flavour and wholesomeness of foods. This statement holds true for practically all of the food groups, whether vegetables, fruits, meats or dried foods. "Wear-Ever" is good for baking, frying or stewing. It cooks on top of the stove or in the oven. There is no food, no cooking process, for which "Wear-Ever" Aluminum Cooking Utensils cannot be used.

MARRIAGES

PENN-GRADINGER

The marriage of Florence, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Gradinger, Arlington Avenue, to Leon Penn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Penn, de l'Épée Avenue, took place at the Mount Royal Hotel, on Sunday, December 9, at six o'clock, Rabbi Charles Bender officiating, assisted by Cantor Nathan Mendelson. The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a white satin princess gown, with a heart-shaped neckline, trimmed with seed pearls, long, tight-fitting sleeves, puffed at the shoulder, and a full skirt, draping into a train. Her lace veil was caught to a coronet of seed pearls, matching those on her gown, and her bouquet was of white roses and orchids. Mrs. William Berlin, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, wearing a garnet-colored crepe afternoon dress, cut with a high, round neckline, long sleeves, criss-cross button trimming on the bodice, and a draped skirt. Her matching hat was trimmed with an ostrich feather, and she carried a cascade bouquet of fall flowers. Mrs. Gradinger, mother of the bride, received, wearing a powder-blue crepe afternoon dress, with a blue and maroon-colored feather hat to match, and a corsage of American Beauty roses. Mrs. Penn, mother of the groom, wore a grey afternoon dress, with a corsage of American Beauty roses. Sidney Penn, uncle of the bride, played the piano for the ceremony. At the dinner, in the hotel, the bride's table was adorned with yellow and bronze-colored chrysanthemums, and white taper. Mr. and Mrs. Penn left for Toronto, Ont., and Buffalo, N.Y., the bride travelling in a red velvet suit, a beaver coat, with matching beaver hat, and a corsage of orchids. They will live in Montreal.

MINTZ-WASSERMAN

The marriage of Sophia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. Wasserman, 5455 Jeanne Mance Street, to Martin L. Mintz, son of Mr. and Mrs. N. Mintz, 4900 Clarendon Avenue, took place at half-past six o'clock on Sunday, November 25, in the Salle Dorée of the Mount Royal Hotel, Rabbi Charles Bender officiating, assisted by Rabbi M. J. Wachtel and Rev. M. Maest. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a long white satin gown, made in redingote effect, and draping into a long train. The scalloped neckline was outlined with seed pearls, and the bodice and skirt were centred with scallops and embroidered with seed pearls, a diamonds forming the centre of each motif. The sleeves were finished with a deep scallop over the hands, in the same pearl and diamonds pattern. Her veil of tulle illusion was edged in lace, and caught to a coronet of tiny pearl-shell flowers, and her bouquet was a sheaf of Calla lilies. Miss Birdie Wasserman, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, wearing a long powder-blue and silver lace dress, with a drop-shoulder effect, and a hooped skirt. Her headpiece was of fuchsia-colored ostrich tips; and she had matching fuchsia-colored velvet gloves, and a cascade bouquet of American Beauty roses. Sandra and Rhoda Zelnicker, nieces of the bride, were junior bridesmaids, dressed alike in powder-blue mousseline de soie, similar in cut to the gown of the maid of honor, with hooped skirts. They had shirred bonnets of the same material and carried nosegays. William Mintz, brother of the groom, was best man, and the ushers were: Harry L. Rodier, brother-in-law of the bride; Al. Roseman, Bernard Roseman, and Arthur Goodstone. The altar was decorated with chrysanthemums and palms, and there were tall candelabra entwined with ferns and baby chrysanthemums on each side. During the signing of the register, a soloist sang to organ accompaniment, and throughout the ceremony, Mrs. Wasserman, mother of the bride, wore a floor-length gown of black Chantilly lace, with black sequin trimming, a matching sequin hat, and a corsage of Briarcliff roses. Mrs. Mintz, mother of the groom, wore a floor-length black crepe gown, with nylon insets, and trimmed with sequin and jet beading around the neckline; a matching hat, and a corsage of Joanne Hill roses. At dinner for two hundred and fifty guests, the bride's table was centred with a three-tiered wedding cake, and there were silver candelabra with white tapers, and bowls of vari-colored chrysanthemums and roses. Mr. and Mrs. Mintz left for a motor trip to the United States. Mrs. Mintz travelling in a grey cashmere suit, with moleskin coat, and black accessories. They will live at 8730 Darlington Avenue.

in Palestine supported through the United Palestine appeal, and $1,000,000 for the adjustment program of the National Refugee in the U.S.

The conference was spurred in setting the campaign goal by leaders of the Jews in concentration camps in the American, British and French zones of occupation in Germany who told the delegates that the Jews of the United States were not providing enough help and that they would have to extend far greater aid in the form of immediate relief and emigration to Palestine if the survivors were not to perish.

Dr. Chaim Weizmann of London, president of the Jewish Agency for Palestine, warned foreign statesmen "not to try to drive wedges between sections of Jewry." He accused Ernest Bevin, British Foreign Secretary, of "attempting to prejudice the Anglo-American commission on the absorptive capacity of Palestine."

Dr. Benito Levi, of Rome, vice-chairman of the Jewish relief organization in Italy, reported that 17,000 homeless Jews, many of them from Poland, have crossed the borders into Italy, in a desperate effort to migrate to Palestine. He described how the Vatican helped maintain 4,500 Jews in Rome, who lived in hiding to escape deportation.

pected to become an even more desirable commodity as time goes by and its influence in Middle Eastern affairs may be expected to grow accordingly.

In the case of the British Government, he said, the United States now is in a position to influence British decisions and should take advantage of the fact to push the plan for a Jewish homeland.

Dr. Newman criticized the record of the Administration in respect to Palestine and the question of homeless Jews as "taking on the appearance of an unbroken succession of broken pledges." Dr. Shipley, speaking as a representative of non-Jewish organizations, scored the activities of anti-Semitic groups that have been resumed with the end of the war. Dr. Wise spoke as co-chairman of the American Zionist Council.

Taft charged that opponents of the proposed Jewish Commonwealth in Palestine were conducting a campaign of "gross misrepresentation of the intentions" of those who support Jewish aspirations in that controversial mandate.

The Senators are joint leaders of the Christian Palestine Committee, a Protestant body.

The "misrepresentation," they said, centers in "the astounding and baseless charge" that it is proposed to establish in Palestine a "theocratic" State or "a State based upon religious or racial discrimination." They declared that "this insidious campaign" has "now been carried to the White House in an obvious attempt to influence the Administration."

They wrote to the President, the Senators stated, because they had found it "necessary to make a full statement of our position in order to dispel such fantastic misconceptions so assiduously fostered."

The pending Palestine resolution, the Senators said, represents "no more than a restatement of the position taken by both major parties representing, as they do, the great majority of American citizens."

U.S. SENATE

problem was needed, Senator Wagner made this statement:

"But if we are to be sure that the Anglo-American committee of enquiry is to serve a useful purpose, the immediate adoption of this resolution by the Congress is imperative. We want the members of the committee to have discretion in their methods. We want the members of the committee to have discretion in devising the quickest possible means of fulfilling the promises already made for Palestine. But we do not want the committee to have the discretion to make its own decisions on matters of fundamental policy. We do not want the committee to recast promises or re-formulate objectives."

An amendment by Senator Thomas C. Hart of Connecticut which would have removed all language referring to exclusive Jewish privileges in Palestine was defeated by a loud chorus of "no's." He would have deleted such phrases as "free entry" and "Jewish national home" but left the final words of the resolution, which, as passed, are:

"Establish a democratic commonwealth in which all men, regardless of race or creed, shall have equal rights."

As adopted the resolution asks for a national home for Jews and a commonwealth for about sixty nationalities and sects.

Among those who rallied to the resolution were Senators Robert A. Taft, co-sponsor with Senator Wagner, Warren R. Austin of Vermont and Brian McMahon of Connecticut.

The House Foreign Affairs Committee heard testimony against the resolution from Lessing J. Rosenwald of Jenkintown, Pa., president of the American Council of Judaism, an organization of 10,000 members. He said Palestine should not be a Moslem, Christian or Jewish state but one in which persons of all faiths would have equal citizenship.

In reply to a question by Representative James W. Wadsworth of

New York, who feared that setting Jews in Palestine would mean further segregation, Mr. Rosenwald said that Jews should integrate themselves as citizens in the countries in which they lived. He did not believe Palestine afforded a solution.

Dr. Emanuel Neuman represented the Zionist Organization of America.

MARRIAGES

SANDLER-FRIEDMAN

The marriage of Helen Mad-son, daughter of Mrs. Edith Friedman, of Bronx, N.Y., and the late Benjamin Friedman, to Edwin Milton Sandler, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Sandler, 1646 Bathurst Street, took place on Sunday, November 25, at half-past two o'clock, at the West Side Jewish Centre, Manhattan, New York, Rabbi Charles Abeles officiating, assisted by Cantor Joseph Ellner. Given in marriage by her uncle, Simon Magnus, of Long Island, N.Y., the bride wore a white satin gown fashioned on princess lines, with a high neckline, long sleeves, fitted bodice, and a full skirt ending in a flowing train. Her full-length veil of tulle was caught in a coronet of tiny rose petals, and she carried an old-fashioned bouquet of gardenias and sweet peas. The bride's only attendant was her sister, Miss Kala Friedman, wearing a gown of sky-blue crepe, with a sequined headpiece and veil, and she carried a bouquet of sweet heart roses and bouvardia. Herbert Weintraub, of Rochester, N.Y., attended the groom as best man. The honeymoon was spent in South Glastonbury, Conn. For travelling, the bride wore a beige suit, with black accessories, and a corsage of orchids. The bride and groom will reside in Toronto. Out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. J. Friedman and daughter, Helen, and Mrs. I. Friedman, of Norwich, Conn.; Mr. and Mrs. H. Flanner and daughter, Adele, and Ben. Levine, of Wilmington, Del.; Mrs. Lena Goldman and Y. Levine, of Philadelphia, Pa.; A. Finkle, of Pittsburgh, Pa.; Mrs. M. Springman, of Atlantic City, N.J.; Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Sandler, the groom's parents; Mr. and Mrs. B. P. Usher, Mr. and Mrs. J. NORTH SHOWING

"The appearance and composition of the shear and the veins in the North Showing is identical with that of the South Showing. The writer and his party spent a day stripping and prospecting the area as there had been no previous work done. During this work, a six foot vein of dark quartz was discovered on 'Outcrop C', a chip sample of which assayed 0.13 oz. Au. This did not include material from the walls which was too rusty to include in a representative sample. However, grabs from the east wall over a width of two feet assayed 0.53 oz. Au. Later stripping showed this vein to be over nine feet wide, with a length of twenty-five feet, each end of which goes into low ground. On the north side of 'Outcrop B', a dark quartz vein eighteen inches wide was uncovered, grab from which assayed 0.11 and 0.05 oz. Au.

On the east side of the outcrop is a small exposure of rusty shearing containing quartz arsenopyrite and pyrite, a grab from which assayed 0.49 oz. Au."

SOUTH SHOWING

"As noted above, visible gold was picked out of the channels, assaying 0.70, 2.26, and 0.96. Most of the rock cut was fairly fresh, as a considerable amount of blasting was done. However, it was impossible to obtain entirely fresh material from the walls due to their schistose nature. However, the samples were carefully taken and the writer feels sure that they are representative. In this connection Mr. W. B. Airth, who examined the property on September 1st, 1945, obtained 0.93 oz. Au. over 30 inches, where the writer obtained 0.98 over 42 inches. At the time of Mr. Airth's examination, the full width of the vein was not exposed. The average for a length of 70 feet is 0.814 oz. Au. over a width of 38.3 inches, or $31.34 at $38.50 oz. Au. (This average is from nine channel samples.)" (Note: All free gold was removed from sample that assayed 2.26 Au. across 40").

EASTERN SHOWING
"This showing is situated in the southeastern corner of the Salmita Group, just northwest of Post No. 1, Salerno No. 2. Work in this area consists of one rock pit, four feet by three feet by two feet deep, put down by the writer, Mr. Mitto and Mr. Parkes. In this pit a quartz vein fourteen inches wide is exposed, with eight inches of schist on each wall, all of which are fairly well mineralized with pyrite and arsenopyrite. A channel sample over thirty inches assayed 0.15 oz. Au."

CONCLUSIONS
"The writer considers the Salmita property an extremely promising mining venture. For the amount of work done the results have been very encouraging. One vein has been opened up for a length of seventy feet which averaged 0.814 oz. Au. over 38.3 inches. At $38.50 gold, this value is $31.34 per ton, which is definitely ore grade. Both ends of the vein are open, with excellent values at each end, and the vein looks very strong in both places. The vein lies in a strong shear zone which has been mapped for a distance of four miles and has a known length of twenty-two miles and along which gold has been found in numerous places. Eight thousand feet southwest of the South showing is a vein on an adjoining property that is at least seven hundred feet long, twenty-eight feet of which channelled 0.60 oz. Au. over a width of six feet and with visible gold showings on it that have never been mined. This auriferous shear traverses the Salmita property for a distance of 14,000 feet, and the entire length of it should be investigated. The strength and persistency of this controlling geological structure, plus the fact that vein widths are of mining width, make the property very attractive from an economic viewpoint because it opens up, not only the possibility that fairly large tonnages may be developed, but also that the search for ore is confined to a well defined structure.

"In conclusion, I would like to state again that I have no hesitation in saying that the Salmita property is one of exceptional merit for the amount of work done, it is the best showing I have ever examined, and is well worth the expenditures outlined."

A Challenge To Christendom

The Christmastide, with its message of peace and good will is here. I, as a Rabbi, rejoice that on Christmas Day millions of Christians will pay homage to the child of Bethlehem, born within the Jewish fold, who became the inspiration for noble living.

Christians have proclaimed Jesus, the Jew, as the Messiah, as the Christ. If only Christians were Christ-like; if only the so-called Christians would implement the teachings of the Nazarene in daily living, how truthfully Jewish they would be in spirit. In a way, it may be said frankly that the tragedy of it all is that non-Jews for the most part are still "Gentiles" and not Christians. The Church has failed to complete the great missionary work commenced by the Apostle Paul in converting the heathens.

The so-called Christian world forgets the debt it owes the Jew! We Jews are "the Christ-begotters", not the "Christ-killers". Alas, that in this late date in many churches the Jew is stigmatized as the crucifier of the Nazarene! How sad it is that minds of innocent Christian children are thus poisoned toward the people of Israel by misinterpretations of the crucifixion tragedy which Jesus, the Jew, because of his revolt against Roman oppression, experienced at the hands of the Romans.

The Jews had no reason to put Jesus to death. As a Jew he practiced Judaism. He came not to destroy the law but to uphold it. When one of the scribes asked Jesus, "Master, what is the greatest command?" He replied, "Hear, O Israel, the Lord our God, the Lord is One." And when the scribe asked further for the second great command, Jesus said, "Love thy fellow man as thyself."

The Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of man are the two cardinal doctrines of Judaism. These are now also the fundamental doctrines of Christianity. The Jew and Judaism, the mother religion of Christianity, deserve better at the hands of the followers of Jesus.

For, behold, that the Jewish people is the Christ people! We Jews have been crucified a thousand and one times. Let it be said openly now that the Christian treatment of the Jews is one of the ghastly crimes of all the ages. Turn the pages of history and read what abominable things have been done to the Jew by the adherents of the church in the past sixteen hundred years—the tortures, the persecutions, the humiliations, the denial of human rights, the inquisitions.

One is unwilling to borrow the mind with the recital in detail of the Christian Jewish tragedy of the past. Why speak of the past when we are the witnesses of that most dreadful story of Jewish suffering which has happened since Hitler came to power. In our own day, six million Jews perished for the most part due to a calculated program of extermination worked out by the Nazis.

Germany, supposedly, was a great Christian nation. Hitler was a product of so-called Christian civilization. For years the blood brothers of Jesus were hunted like rats and shot down like dogs in the streets and burned alive in their homes and synagogues. They were gassed, electrocuted, injected with poisons and disease germs. They were made to dig their own graves and were then machine-gunned!

Now there are only remnants of Jewry on the continent of Europe. We are grateful that Jewish refugees have found sanctuary in England, France, Sweden, Switzerland and Russia. But what about the Jews still languishing in concentration camps in Germany, six months after V-E Day? Decency demands that these inmates be transferred at once to lands of peace and plenty, preferably Palestine. Why should thousands of survivors, these heroic souls, be kept in the camps? Why force them to return to Poland, Hungary or Roumania?

Chaplain Robert Marcus, who recently returned from Europe, declares that the displaced persons are kicked around and starved, with the hope that these may become disgusted and thus change their minds about wanting to go to Palestine and agree to return to Poland. The Jewish refugees want a permanent abode. That abode for them is Palestine! About 400,000 Jewish refugees, bereft of home and country, are faced with doom and death. Why shouldn't they be permitted to go to Zion? Palestine belongs to the Jew historically. From a legal point of view Palestine belongs to the Jew by the agreement of fifty-two nations of the world—nations which confirmed the Balfour Declaration issued by Great Britain in 1917.

How can Britain and the United States claim to be the upholders of a new world order of justice when the covenant entered into with the Jewish people regarding the restoration of Palestine as the Jewish national home is repudiated? Not only historically, not only legally, does Palestine belong to the Jew. This land is Jewish by the virtue of Jewish achievement there in the settlement of a desert which has been converted into a veritable garden.

I have pilgrimaged to Palestine on three different occasions and have witnessed the glory of Jewish creativeness. I have witnessed the work of the chelutim, their creation of fertile fields and gardens out of desert. They have re-created and redeemed the land and made Palestine the most civilized, democratic land of the entire Middle East. And none of this was achieved at the expense of a single non-Jew, be he Arab or Christian, who lives in Palestine. Because of Jewish achievement, the Arabs in the land are to-day more healthy and prosperous than at any time in their history.

At the Christmastide when Christians will especially remember the Holy Land and the little town of Bethlehem where Jesus first saw the light of day, we plead for an awakened Christian conscience in the treatment of the Jew. Christian statesmen have now the opportunity to atone for Christendom's hurt of the Jew through the centuries. The leaders of Christian nations must now secure Palestine for the Jew as an act of penitence. Christians, in the spirit of Christmas, ought to realize that anti-

"Sometimes when people commit me,

That for what it cost me to be free,
I might have had an anchor."

During October Eliahu Ben-Horin, for sixteen years a newspaper editor in Palestine, and author of "The Middle East, Crossroads Of History", had some interesting things to say in The Nation in two articles, "Have The Arabs A Case?" and "Palestine And Grand Strategy". This column will pick them out and give the gist of them here to throw light on a subject which is too often confined to treatment from the viewpoint of propaganda and therefore needs the benefit of some additional thinking, no matter what the sentiments of the individual in search of truth may be.

Mr. Ben-Horin says that the Arabs have no case in their stand against the solution of the Palestine issue in favor of the Jewish people. During the war their attitude was pro-German; and the form of society which they represent is in harmony with the Nazi-Fascist system rather than with Labor Britain or democratic America. And yet the rulers of these countries would rather back the Arabs than the Jews, even to the point of betraying the latter.

Arab soldiers fought in German uniforms and some of them are detained at Camp Opelika, in Alabama, as a result. Some of them fought the Yugoslav partisans, with swastikas in evidence. Arab leaders prayed for Axis victories and rejoiced over Axis advances. The British were able to catch an Egyptian statesman with the plans of the British High Command in his pocket on the eve of his escape to Rome. Amin El Hussein, the ex-Mufti, who is held in France as a war criminal, is regarded by the Arabs as a hero, who, as Hitler's official adviser on Arab affairs, was all right but on the losing side.

As to Arab social philosophy, the impoverished, illiterate, and disease-ridden populace is ruled over without assistance from modern ideas and, although vast fortunes in Western capital went to develop the oil riches and pay royalties to Arab governments, living standards were not raised nor were conditions improved. The ruling clique got the money in one form or another. The Iraq concession has been in operation for years. But an Arab paper in Baghdad, The Voice Of The People, said last year that two percent of the people control the entire wealth; eight percent form a poor middle class; seventy-five percent live in appalling conditions; fifteen percent are destitute. This description applies to every Arab land in the Middle East.

All the same, pan-Arabic aspirations are bolstered by the British and American governments; President Truman even presented Prince Abdul Ilah, Regent of Iraq, with the medal of the Legion of Merit for war services, and every kind of political and material favor has been showered on the Arabs. What is behind it all? The usual answer is oil. But part and parcel of the Jewish-Arab controversy are the plans of the British-American alliance on the one hand and of Soviet Russia on the other, and in the jockeying for position by the great powers the Middle East is a bone of contention.

In his second article, Mr. Ben-Horin begins by saying that the real reason for Britain's illogical and unjust Palestine policy is not the threat of pan-Arabic resistance to a Zionist State. Soviet Russia's expansionist tendencies in the Middle East are the major factor in shaping British and American policy there. The Western democracies are not afraid of Pan-Arabia but they are afraid of an alliance between the Soviet and the Arabs, having been sold a bill of goods to this effect by the Arab leaders. The threat of such an alliance is not real since the Arab barons dread Soviet influence because it would bring in progress.

Nothing could be farther from the mark than the habit of Jewish leaders of presenting the Palestine problem as a quarrel between Jews and Arabs. Palestine figures, as a link between Europe, Africa, and Asia, in future world communications, trade expansion, sea power versus land power, and things like that. The present British Cabinet, not wishing to liquidate the Empire and transform Britain into a third-rate power, is seeking the policy which will ensure British control of the Middle East. The loss of Palestine would be a deadly blow because of its strategic-geographic importance.

What America hopes to obtain through its alliance with Britain are outposts of military power which would keep Arabism out accessible. America has only been a guest there where Britain is supreme. But now Britain regards the United States as a desirable partner, not out of altruism but because Russia's ambitions in that area have become clear and Britain wants the United States to share the responsibility in case of an encounter in the desert. The true basis of the British-American alliance is to keep Russia within a land-locked empire. Thus the balance of power will be determined at the Straits, in the eastern Mediterranean, and in the Persian Gulf.

Examining the situation in that perspective, British love for the Arabs or dislike of the Jews does not enter into the question. The British know that a united Arabia is not likely and that petty rulers can be managed or bought off. But the United States, new at colonial imperialism, has swallowed the stuff about a probable Soviet-Arab alliance for Russian power and the advice of young emissaries of oil companies to placate the Arabs and forget the pledges to the Jews.

The Arabs dislike the British with their insistence on control behind the facade of native independence. Right now they like the United States because it is rich, the least imperialistic, and gives more for nothing important. But if these two countries suffered an eclipse, the most violent anti-Jewish attitude in Palestine would not enable them to retain Arab friendship. Mr. Ben-Horin's point is that they do not have to trade Jewish blood and Jewish suffering for Arab oil and sympathies; that fear of an Arab-Soviet alliance is fantastic.

food and clothing to be had because of inflation. Living conditions, he said, "are indescribably poor."

The necessity for approving the huge budget, more than twice that for 1944, was stressed by all the speakers, who included Major Ja-dah Nadich, chief Jewish chaplain in Europe and former special adviser on Jewish affairs to General Eisenhower, and Edward M. M. Warburg, newly elected chairman of the JDC.

Although they agreed that conditions had improved somewhat in the last few months, they were unanimous in charging that the Army still was not doing all it should to provide relief for the

Zionism Without Illusions

By Dr. Felix Sokolov, 48 Isabella Street, Toronto, Ontario

The Zionist movement has arrived at a critical juncture. Before long decisions with regard to Palestine will be made which for all practical purposes may be final. Judging by the attitude recently taken by the responsible politicians, there is little chance that the solution will be satisfactory for the Jews. The Jewish masses are swept by a wave of excitement and indignation. In this situation we need leaders who, in full control of themselves, face the facts and show their followers the way to a possible solution. But the Zionist leaders have apparently lost their nerve. They know to do nothing better than to vent their disappointment and resentment and to push the Zionist masses forward on a way which cannot but end in disillusion and disaster. To those of us who are still capable of sober thinking falls the duty to face the facts and draw the necessary conclusions.

The present Zionist propaganda knows only one question: whether the promises made to the Jewish people will be kept. In matters of politics, however, promises mean little and realities everything. Whether a political promise will be kept or broken always depends on the actual situation. In our case the situation is determined by the fact that the aim of the Zionist movement is a Jewish State in Palestine and that it is opposed by the Arab national movement.

Things were very different at the time of the rise of the Zionist movement and even at the time of the Balfour Declaration. Then, it could be assumed that Palestine could be built up by the Jews peacefully and without opposition if the Powers approved of their return. But since then the Arab States have come into being in the surrounding countries and in Palestine itself an Arab national movement has sprung up, which finds at least the moral support of the Arab States. The vital question is: Can we have a Jewish State in Palestine against the will of the Arabs?

So far the Jews are the minority in Palestine. To establish a State which represents the minority of the country is clearly an impossibility in modern times. True, history records numerous cases of that kind. But in all of them the majority either had no political will or was subdued by force. The Palestinian Arabs today have a political will and would only be subdued if England or the United Nations were to use their military power for the sake of the Jews against the Arabs. No one thinks of doing that. The reason is not only that it would run counter to democratic ideas. In matters of policy every country is guided by its own interests. But no country has an interest in a Jewish State in Palestine. Some may wish that the gates of Palestine should be opened to the Jews because they themselves are reluctant to admit the homeless victims of Nazi persecution. But that is a different question.

Nor is there any reasonable chance that the Jews will become the majority in Palestine. For, if large-scale Jewish immigration should be permitted (which is unlikely), Arab immigration will certainly not be prohibited. Palestine attracts great numbers of Arabs because of its economic development since the beginning of Jewish immigration. The natural growth of the population is not favorable for the Jews, either. Hence the Jews cannot outnumber the Arabs in Palestine apart from unpredictable events.

Even if, by some miracle, they should reach the majority it would be a very different situation.

Jews. They were especially critical of the British attitude and of conditions in British camps. Major Nadich, declaring that conditions for Jews in the American zone in Germany had shown considerable improvement since August, contended, however, that "these conditions have improved nowhere near enough." He added that "many in the Army are not too much worried about displaced persons, Jewish or otherwise, but that was never true of General Eisenhower or his aide, Lieut. Gen. Walter B. Smith."

He said that, while Jews were getting the proper caloric content in the way of food, the diet was not balanced sufficiently for persons who had suffered malnutrition for five and six years. He also contended that the situation regarding Jews in Germany "will never be satisfactory as long as Jews live in camps, and if that means crowding the Germans, then I say it is time to crowd the Germans."

Mr. Warburg, who undertook a five-week inspection tour after his discharge as a major in the Army, termed the American camps the best in Europe, but agreed that it was still necessary to see that Army orders for their welfare were carried out "in the lower echelons and not remain just an abstract fact." He made a strong plea for funds and adequate personnel to augment the Army's relief program.

be a fateful mistake for the Jews to establish a Jewish State against the will of the Arab native population. For the result would be a perpetual domestic war, which the Jews could not win in the long run because of the neighboring Arab States. This inner war would make conditions in Palestine much more unendurable than they normally are in other countries. Any temporary success of the Jews would lead to pogroms in other countries which are inhabited by Arabs. The Jewish communities in North Africa would be wiped out. In Palestine itself the probable end would be something like a St. Bartholomew's Eve.

The truth is: We cannot win the struggle with the Arabs. We cannot have a Jewish State in Palestine against the will of the Arab population. What we cannot achieve by agreement and co-operation with the Arabs we cannot achieve at all. On the other hand, we have much to offer to the Arabs both inside and outside Palestine in economic respect, and we can gain a good deal in this way. But the prerequisite is to abandon the idea of a Jewish State in Palestine against the will of the Arabs. For this aim makes every agreement impossible and a hopeless fight unavoidable.

If we abandon the idea of establishing a Jewish State in Palestine against the will of the Arabs we give up nothing more than an illusion. To tell this to their followers will be a hard and bitter task for the Zionist leaders, certainly much harder than to protest against the Palestine policy of the British Government. But the Jewish people cannot afford to attempt the impossible and to give its weakened moral and material resources to a hopeless fight. For this reason we must call on the Zionist leaders to tell their followers the truth. If they are genuine leaders they will listen to the demands of reason and necessity. If they fail, thousands and ten thousands of Jews in Palestine and other countries where Arabs live will pay for it with their blood, and the Zionist movement will eventually break down and perish like all the former movements which wanted to lead the Jews back to Palestine.

WARN JEWS

Declaring that he considers Jewish condemnation of the Balfour statement on Palestine "a grave error," Harold J. Laski, chairman of the executive of the Labor Party, said, in an article written for the Overseas News Agency, that he thinks "the wiser path is one of waiting to see what the Anglo-American commission decides."

"Only in the light of the recommendations of this commission, both interim and final, and the decisions taken on such, can the wisdom or lack of wisdom of the policy be judged," Laski says. Explaining why he urges the Jews to have patience, "however hard it may be to be patient," Laski writes:

"It is of decisive importance that President Truman has agreed to full American participation in the inquiry. It is of not less decisive importance that the terms of reference to the Anglo-American committee are wide enough not only to make possible the abandonment of that administrative separation between Palestine and Transjordan which was a grave initial error in British policy, but which Zionists have always insisted was an error which worked to their detriment. It is of outstanding importance, also, that the case made by men of the standing of Dr. Lowenthal can now be examined at the level where favorable judgment will imply an Anglo-American obligation to act; and I believe myself that irrigation of the Negev alone, if it is judged practicable, will permit, and, indeed, compel the recognition of the Jewish right to large-scale immigration."

Mr. Laski comes to the conclusion that "if it is the wish of the overwhelming majority of European Jews to settle in Palestine, the Zionists need not fear the outcome of the commission's researches into this question since their judgment would then be confirmed." He adds that he does not see in the Balfour Declaration or in the terms of the Palestine Mandate "any pledge that there shall be a Jewish majority or a Jewish State." The clear meaning of each of these documents, he says, is the right of Jews to be allowed freely to enter Palestine as long as that entrance does not impair the welfare of the Arabs.

"I think the commission can be shown first, that free entrance, viewed objectively, has increased, and not impaired Arab welfare, and that if Transjordan is included, and, second, that of Dr. Lowenthal are applied there and to the Negev, the Arabs in Palestine as conceived would have any ground for opposing large-scale Jewish immigration, and if it meant a Jewish majority."
